

Lars Gert Lose

Lars Gert Lose became ambassador of Denmark to the United States on Sept. 17, 2015, having most recently served as ambassador, permanent undersecretary of state and chief advisor of foreign affairs to the prime minister since 2013.

In addition, he served as ambassador, political director and undersecretary for global politics and security (2012-13); ambassador and undersecretary for global security (2011-12); ambassador and head of the Foreign Minister's Office, including chief of public relations (2010-11); as well as head of department and head of the Foreign Minister's Office, including chief of public relations (2008-10).

Ambassador Lose was also private secretary to Foreign Affairs Minister Per Stig Møller (2004-08) and first secretary of economic and political affairs at the Danish Embassy in Paris (2001-04). Other postings include head of section for the European Policy Office (2000-01); head of section for the Southern Africa Office (1998-2000); and head of section for the EU Coordination Office (1997-98).

Ambassador Lose holds a master's degree in international relations from the University of Warwick in England and a candidate's degree in political science from Aarhus University in Denmark.

He is married to Ulla Kølvråa Rønberg and they have three children.